Gardening habits have changed so drastically in recent years that we are now looking for plants which will be permanent in our flower borders, those which will give us the maximum in bloom and growth, with the least effort and expense to us. Daylilies fill these requirements all the way. Once planted in your garden, you can expect years of enjoyment from them. They will increase in size and number of bloom stalks (in the same spot, if you do not wish to divide and transplant them). They will become veritable fountains of lovely blossoms.
